BHMI Joins the American Transaction Processors Coalition

OMAHA, Neb. – April 22, 2019 -- Recognizing the growing need for public policy initiatives focused on supporting the payments processing and FinTech industries, Baldwin Hackett & Meeks, Inc. (BHMI), a leading provider of enterprise software applications and creator of the Concourse Financial Software Suite™, announced it has officially joined the American Transaction Processors Coalition (ATPC).

Atlanta-based ATPC supports the payments industry on both the state and Federal levels through its government affairs activities and public relations initiatives, promoting and protecting the industry as a whole, as well as the individual companies that support and comprise this critical business community. As a full member and sponsor of the ATPC, BHMI will support the organization's efforts to work with fellow companies, as well as community leaders and government officials, to raise the profile of the payments processing industry.

"The ATPC is continuously seeking thought leaders and industry experts in the Payments and FinTech space. The team at BHMI brings a wealth of experience and knowledge that complement and align with the mission of the ATPC and its member companies," said H. West Richards, Executive Director for the ATPC.

"Our industry faces a host of issues and challenges and it is crucial the companies that comprise the payment processing community are heard and supported," said Dr. Lynne Baldwin, President of BHMI. "We believe strongly in the work that the ATPC is doing and we look forward to working together to further promote the advancement of the industry."

About the American Transaction Processors Coalition (ATPC)

ATPC protects, promotes, and preserves the payments industry, as well as the many companies that develop the products and provide resources supporting the financial service industry's technology needs through proactive government affairs and public relations on a Federal level and at the state level, including Georgia and other states.
